Program

For our program Lion Steve Murphree acted as the MC for a college football trivia contest, as was appropriate for the big football championship game between LSU and Clemson, later tonight. The winner was promised a very nice prize. Last year's winner, Lion Scott Waldrep, felt it was fair to all the less-knowledgeable Lions that he would not compete this year, so he just helped Lion Steve facilitate the contest.

Lion Steve Murphree explaining the rules for the football trivia contest.

Lions were provided with a hand-out with 10 multiple-choice trivia questions and were given a few minutes to write their answers. The questions ranged from "How big are the numbers on the field that indicate the yard line?" (4' by 6'), to "When was the first college football bowl game played and where?" (1902 in the Rose Bowl). Everybody's answers were passed to someone else at their table for grading.

There were two Lions who claimed to have answered all question correctly, Lion Clark Rainwater and David Bussman. However, it was noted that these two were seen working together at a table by themselves and had to admit that they used search-apps on their smart phones to get the answers. There were two legitimate winners who both had answered 9 questions correctly, and then tied, yet again, on Lion Steve's tie-breaker questions. The winners were Lions Wendell Copeland and George Krigbaum. Lion Steve declared a tie and that each would receive a regulation NCAA football as co-prize winners.

Other Business

Lion Jerry Caudle is having serious health challenges but has improved slightly this week.

Lion George Hammett has moved into Danberry Memory Care in Birmingham. His wife, Joan asks that you please come by to visit. She says that George has unlimited daily activities, daily exercise, excellent supervision with one on one staff, and spend time with her daily.

Lion Samuel Tucker was back with us tonight after overcoming several problems, lately -- heart & kidney trouble, and then a fall at work.
